Targeted 7% Distribution Rate Paid Monthly

The Index seeks to offer the potential for targeted monthly distributions while maintaining a stable net asset value over time, all or a portion of which includes a return of capital if the Fund's net return is less than the targeted distribution rate.

Well-Diversified, Multi-Asset Portfolio

Strategy Shares Nasdaq 7HANDL Index ETF (Nasdaq: HNDL) consists of 19 ETFs representing broad exposure to an estimated 20,000 individual underlying securities, including U.S. Fixed Income, U.S. Equity, U.S. Alternative, and U.S. Blend (as of 12/31/2018).

Powered by Nasdaq Dorsey Wright

The index consists of ETFs that are split into two equally-weighted categories, a Core Portfolio and a Dorsey Wright Explore Portfolio, creating a well-diversified, multi-asset portfolio of relatively low-cost exchange-traded funds ("ETFs").

In order to allow shareholders of the Fund to realize a predictable, but not assured, level of cash flow, the Fund has adopted a policy which may be modified at any time to pay monthly distributions on Fund shares at a target rate that represents an annualized payout of approximately 7.0% on the Fund's per-share net asset value on the date of a distribution's declaration.

Shareholders should not assume that the source of a distribution from the Fund is net profit. Shareholders should note that return of capital will reduce the tax basis of their shares and potentially increase the taxable gain, if any, upon disposition of their shares. The index will have risk characteristics similar to the broad US capital markets and will generally rise and fall with prevailing market conditions, with the goal, but not the guarantee, of achieving a total return sufficient, over time and after expenses, to support a seven percent (7.0%) annual distribution rate. Thus, since the ETF's performance is correlated to the index, the fund's net asset value and returns will vary and an investor can lose money in an investment in the fund.

How does automatic distribution adjustment work?

Distribution declarations are made on the ninth trading day of the month and set to 1/12th of a 7% annual rate of the prior night's closing NAV. While the fund's NAV will change from month-to-month based on market movements, the distribution is adjusted each month to reflect such movement (all or a portion of which includes a return of capital during unfavorable environments to maintain a distribution for your clients).

What advantages do balanced portfolios provide?

Academic research suggests that diversification can help investors reduce volatility and potentially increase risk-adjusted returns. We believe our Fund is well diversified, which may help reduce the risk of being over concentrated in a limited number of securities. By incorporating these asset categories into a well-diversified portfolio, investors may potentially reduce the risk associated with concentrated positions in volatile asset categories.

Investment in a fund of funds is subject to the risks and expenses of the underlying funds. Diversification and asset allocation may not protect against market risk or loss of principal. The use of leverage can amplify the effects of market volatility on the Fund's share price and make the Fund's returns more volatile. The use of leverage may cause the Fund to liquidate portfolio positions when it would not be advantageous to do so in order to satisfy its obligations. The use of leverage may also cause the Fund to have higher expenses than those of funds that do not use such techniques.
